I grew up on the North Norfolk coast and have once again made this lovely part of the world my home. After graduating with a degree in Geography, I worked in industry for four years before completing a Post Graduate Certificate in Education. I taught and led in primary schools in Norfolk before joining the Local Authority as a Mathematics Adviser in 2001. Children's (and adults') understanding of all aspects of the subject is still a passion. More recently I have had a number of roles working with schools and their leaders and governors to develop and enhance leadership. In 2013 I completed a doctorate which looked at school leadership in challenging circumstances. The challenges faced by schools are numerous and the ability of leaders to 'juggle' these to create the best experience for our children never ceases to amaze me. The greatest challenge for me personally was to manage a full-time job, a young child at home and the necessary study! I'm still learning from school leaders, staff, children and communities and try to use some of this shared experience in each new situation. I am glad to be working with The Saints Federation Schools.
